PUBLIC NUISANCES. TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." Sie,-I was glad to read in the columns of the Mail of the 23rd instant a note, addressed to the Inspectors of Nuisances, by a correspondent signing himself " Wayfarer." For such a complaint there is ample cause in several parts of the town, but generalities are sometimes a mistake, and it may be as well to guide the Inspectors at once to the place which I imagine to be indicated by "Wayfarer." At any rate, I can point out a place, lying between Peddar's Wharf and the Clocktower.

KASHGAR AND CHINA

on the 13th ulto. Evidently trying times are at hand for that new and interesting little State. Kashgar, lying about 400 miles north of Cashmere, on the other side of the Himalaya range, in the angle formed by the Thian Shan-mountains and the highland of Pamir, is the most important of the districts through which the stream of commerce finds its way from China to the plains of the Caspian and the Euphrates. Twelve years ago Kasbgar was included in the Chinese Empire, but the people of the valley of the Tarim rose, threw off the Imperial authority and provided themselves with governments of their own. Among these the most vigorous was that formed by the adventurous and politic Yakoob Khan (not to be confounded with the son of the Ameer of Afghanistan of the same name), who raised up a power which has been the object of the friendly attentions both of the Indian Government and

> THE KRUPP GUNS Tho Germans have naturally been excited at the sudden visit recently paid by Herr Rrupp to Vienna, at first reported to be to press on the Austrian War Office the expediency of at once arming itself from the enlarged works at Essen. It has since come out, however, that it was made solely in order to present an official protest against an alleged adoption without his leave of the Krupp pattern in the new Uchatine (steel-bronze) field-gun, adopted a few weeks since under Imperial sanction. The War Minister has published through the Abendpost a semi-official memorandum denying the charge in detail. It declares that the barrel used is rather the Armstrong than the Krupp; the breechapparatus is General Lenk'e, and the Broadwell ring the property in Austria of an-English firm. Above all, the newly adopted weapon cannot be in the least called an imitation of the Krupp stel-pattern, for it is made chiefly of bronze. The steel-bronze gun is declared to be deliberately chosen for three special reasons-1) Its bronze can be used for recasting, while steel cannot. (2) It can be made entirely in Austria, so giving work at home at a time of trade depression. (3) It is not prudent for any State to supply itself abroad; for in 1866 Herr Krupp bimself sold to Italy the very guns ordered of him from Vienna. The latter part of this very plain spoten memorandum is no doubt a reply to those reformers of the Austrian service who asserted that nothing but the Krupp guns could bring their artillery up to the proper level, and who objected to the adoption of the Uchasius from motives of economy. -Pall Mall Gazette.

THE FUTURE AUSTRALIAN A writer in the Brisbane Courier thus depicts the Australian of the future:- Now let us consider what climate and food will do for Australians. In the first place, we must romember that the Australasian nation will have an empire of many climates, for it will range from Singapore and Malacca in the north to New Zealand n the south. All varieties of temperature will be traversed by the railroad traveller of 1974. The enormous area of Australia, that circle whose circumference is the sea, and whose centre is a desert, is a strong reason against federation. It is more than likely hat what should be the Australian Em Not only in point of numbers, but in national piro will be out in half by a line drawn through the centre of the continent. All above this line—Queensland, the Mulacoas, New Guinea, and the parts adjacent-will evolve a luxurious and stupendous civilisation only removed from that of Egypt and Mexico by the measure of the remembrance of European democracy. All beneath the line will be a Republic, baving the mean climate, and in consequence the development of Greece. The intellectual capital of this Republic will be in Victoria. The fashionable and luxurious capital on the shore of Sydney Harbor. The governing capital in New Zealand. The inhabitants of this Republic are easily

The future fate of the low countries, where you go on board, instead of stepping on shore, has not coused to interest the Military Press, because tranquillity reigns just now, thanks to the common action of Russia and England. Such being the case, we intend to refer to a very remarkable letter which has just appeared in the columns of our Parisinn contemporary, the Temps-a letter written from Amsterdam by a special correspondent, who has minutely studied the subject of his communication, viction ought not to prevent us from d There can be no doubt about German Military justice to an opponent of M. ### Extracts.

THE FACE OF THE CHRIST These sonnets are based on the controversy respecting the beauty or deformity of Christ, which originated very early, and continued for a long period. Justin Martyr, Cyril of Alexaudria, and Tertullian upheld the theory of His deformity; indeed, Cyril asserted that he had been the "ugliest of the sons of men." The school which contended for the bodily perfection of Christ numbered, among the Fathers, Ambress, Chrysostom. Jerome, and John Damascene. In support of the latter doctrine, a letter was produced purporting to be written by Lentulus, proconsul in Judma before Herod, in which a description of the Saviour occurs. description is so beautiful, and realises so fully a high ideal, that one regrets the letter is a forgery. The picture there given has been used in the third sonnet.

The Master vanished, but his Spirit swept Across the East, and stirred to eloquence The sad disciples in the truth's defence; But year by year the Lord of Silence crept Into their midst, and one by one they slept, -Till no man lived who had with reverence Looked on the Lord Christ's shining countenance, Or stood ancar him while he prayed and wept! Yet still his purifying spirit reigned, And filled remoter souls with light sublime, And conquered kingdoms by its tender grace; Then many eager, thankful eyes were strained To pierce the mists which touch the skirts of Time, To gain one glance of the Redeemer's face!

And there were those, severe of soul, who said: "Think not the Spirit of the Lord was vain, And clothed itself with loveliness, to gain The wretched homage of the lince and head: Nay, rather, with uncomely front, he pled For grace of soul; with heavy brows of pain Whose pump disturbed the Spirits of the dead! Thus by pure force of Virtue men believed. So was the triumph of the Lord schieved,— He scorned the brilliant raiment of the moth Chose the rough pathway to the eternal goal, The least in form, the mighliest of Soul!"

A chilled red rose, deprived of sunlight, dies, And souls, for lack of Beauty's warmth, despair: So there rose a cry: "The earth was bare Till Christ appeared, like a divine surprise. And on his brow: like poured out wine, his hair Foll, a smooth current to his ears, and there Rippled, like sunny clouds in summer skies! Tall, with majestic presence, calin, and strong, The splendid possibilities of life Were perfected in him, and to the ken Of troubled nations struggling under wrong, And vexed with petty ceremonial strife, The Christ revealed humanity to men!"

-The controversy spread from race to race, But no authentic vision blessed mankind: Each from the subtle substance of his mind. And called it Christ's, and for a blissful space Bent low before it; thus were many blind To his soul's beauty, in their haste to find Some rapturous glimpse of transitory grace! Still with a reverent desire, they dare To seek the Master's presence, knowing well That though they found his features less than fai The splendours of his spirit would compel The mask of flesh to fall, and they should see The perfect blossom of humanity!"
